- POL/47 - ASHES & DIAMONDS
Ashes & Diamonds is one of the clearest portrayals of a communist society ever made. The conflict between idealism and instinct is revealed in the story of a Polish Resistance fighter who assassinates the wrong man on the last day of World War II. This superb testament to the destructiveness of political fanaticism, Andrezej Wajda captures all the bitterness and disillusionment felt by the Polish people during the political struggle that followed the war's end. This is a startlingly and fascinating film by a director with a flair for visual poetry and an eye for stunning imagery. 1958
