GRK/17 - YOU CAN EVEN RUN FOR PRESIDENT: Greek Americans in Politics

Since ancient times, Greeks have continued to consider politics essential to civilized life. In America, we have exhibited traditional national passion for politics ever since arriving in large numbers in the early 1900's. Although a relatively small ethnic group, Greek Americans have been elected to public office at all levels; most recently there has even been a nomination for president to the highest office in the land. Honored guests on this program include - Governor Michael Dukakis, former Mayor of Lincoln, Nebraska, Helen Boosalis, and Senator Paul Sarbanes. (color) (English) (29 min.)

GRK/18 - OF LOBBYISTS AND LAWMAKERS: The Greek American Presence in Washington

Lobbies are often thought of as representing "special interests" but there are also lobbies for public health, for children, for education, for environment, and for peace. All lobbyists see their role as bringing detailed analyses to lawmakers contemplating legislation, to identify "friends and enemies" of their constituency, and to advise government and mass media of the complex impact of a specific policy or piece of legislation. The Greek American lobby has addressed issues from Cyprus to Arms to Turkey to oil drilling rights in the Aegean. Guests Andrew Manatos, Peter Marudas, and Michael Jaharis, Jr. discuss the "Greek lobby" and the general process of influencing federal politics and lawmaking. (color) (English) (29 min.)

GRK/19 - SUPERWOMAN REVISITED: The Changing Roles of Greek American Women

Today's Greek American women face many of the same problems as other women in American society but they have the additional hardship of overcoming the stereotypical roles of Greek women. This program examines the status and the changing roles of Greek American women, discusses their struggles and achievements, and looks at what the future holds for them. Our guests, Barbara Spyridon-Pope - Assistant Secretary of the Navy, authors Constantina Callinicos and Eva Catafygiotu Topping, and former National Philoptochos President Dionisia Ferraro, come from diverse backgrounds and fields and make for an informative discussion (color) (English) (29 min.)

GRK/20 - ON THE WINGS OF HERMES: Greek Americans and the Media

GREEK VIDEOS

Greek Americans have a plethora of media to choose from. In addition to the usual American publications, television, film radio, there are ethnic variations of all, in both Greek and Too, there has been a growing Greek American presence in both the talent and managerial side of all mainline American mass communication carriers. How an ethnic community best serves itself in media options, and the responsibility of Greek and Americans in the media to their various constituencies, are that our guests discuss. GRK/22 - A GREEK HARVEST: The Hellenic Diaspora in America

For millennia, in good times and in bad, voluntarily and through forceful removal, Greeks have left their homeland to settle other parts of the world: The United States, Europe, Australia Canada and various nations of Asia, Africa and South America. These new Greek communities preserved the values of Hellenism while interacting with the cultures of new neighbors. But, in America the assimilation into the mainstream is so rapid, that soon there may be left no Greek Diaspora to be harvested. Guests - Dr. John Brademas, President of New York University talent agent Renee Pappas, and publisher Ari Caratzas discuss ways of nurturing the Greek Diaspora in order to keep it alive (color) (English) (29 min.)

GRK/23 - A COMMUNITY FLAGSHIP: AHEPA

One of the most important and certainly the largest Greek American secular organization is the AHEPA. In the past, AHEPA worked to ease the transition of immigrants into America, to preserve Greek culture into the United States, and to make Greek culture better known to the general American public. In recent years AHEPA has shifted more towards philanthropic areas. Guests - Supreme President Charles Tsaffaras, Grand President Daughters of Penelope Julia Constantine, and past Supreme

GRK/24 - BEYOND SUCCESS: The Issues, Concerns & Challenges Facing the Greek American Community

We Greek Americans are not only faced with the same problems that haunt the rest of American society, but we have our own unique problems as well. On a community level, we must accept the possible loss of our cultural identity if we fail to act immediately. On a broader scale, as part of mainstream America we can no longer ignore the fact that some of our families do become involved in crime, drugs, or other catastrophic situations. Our guests include State Supreme Court Judge Yorke Linakis, Author Helen Papanikolas, Michael Jaharis, and writer Dan Georgakas. (color) (English) (29 min.)

GRK/59 - CRETE & MYCENAE - Museum Without Walls

Over a hundred years ago, just above the rich plain of Argos site of Homer's "golden Mycenae," archaeologist Heinrich Schliemann unearthed the massive and fabled Lion Gate, leading him to pronounce that he had found the graves of Agamemnon and his companions. His discovery was to add yet another piece to one of the most fascinating and mysterious archaeological puzzles of our time. This highly acclaimed motion picture, filmed on island of Crete and at Mycenae on the Greek mainland, unveils the findings of Schliemann and countless others who went before and after him. It explores the cultural and historical connections between the rich Minoan civilization and neighboring Mycenae, probes the palatial archaeological findings at Knossos, and preserves brilliantly on film the beauty and intensity that characterized these two magnificent ancient cultures. "Museum Without Walls" has been called a "splendid art course for art majors, artists, or just those who would like an introduction to the great world of art." (color) (English) (54 min.)

GRK/60 - THE GREEK TEMPLE

For uncounted centuries, the temples at Paestum were lost to human knowledge, shrouded in a marshy, malaria-infested coastal plain. When roads were built into this forbidding region of southern Italy in the mid-18th century, archaeologists discovered the colossal remains of a sacred city that had stood for over 2,000 years. This acclaimed motion picture documentary is a fascinating journey through these remains, as well as those at Delphi, Agrigento, Sounion and the Acropolis. It traces the evolution of the temples in Magna Grecia through the Doric, Ionic and Corinthian styles, and includes models and animated reconstructions of some of the most magnificent of the ancient shrines. From the sprawling Greek power center, Olympia, to the largest and most lavish temple on the mainland, the Parthenon. The Greek Temple spans the golden age of the Greek empire to reveal the glorious and majestic dwelling places of the mythical gods themselves. (color) (English) (54 min.)

GRK/61 - THE MEDEA OF EURIPIDES

The New York Greek Drama Company brings you a Medea as true to the original Athenian experience as modern scholarship can allow. Indeed it is the only one of its kind that exists. Incorporating the latest in classical research, the production completed a successful professional run in New York before being specially adapted to video. As with Euripides' original it features an amalgam of music and dance, costuming and stage scenery, a chorus, two actors with masks and mimetic acting. The text is performed in the full melodious intonation of ancient Greek poetry, with English subtitles. The Greeks knew drama as a fusion of poetry, music and dance. Modern versions of the classics invariably break down the cohesion of the original, divorcing the drama from its poetry and the poetry from its inherent music. The effect is akin to rendering Shakespeare prose. In this production, the New York Greek Drama Company attempts to restore the balance, reinfusing the pulse of poetry into the drama of Greek Tragedy. Set off against the rich and stylized production values that Athenians demanded, the verba music of ancient Greek poetry delivers a thrust to the drama that the Medea which a mere translation can never equal.
